This tournament could not happen without all the competitors, judges, referees, tournament officials, and volunteers, hard work, friendly competition, and dedication to our beloved arts. You have all contributed to the advancement of cooperation, understanding and development of this wonderful art and sport within our country. I wish you all the best of luck and am grateful for your continued support in promoting friendship and cooperation throughout our community.

Dear Honored Guests, Competitors, Family, and Friends,

It is my great honor and privilege to welcome you to the beautiful city of Austin, the capital city of the great state of Texas for the 3rd United States Dragon & Lion Dance Federation National Championships! Over the past 10 plus months I have had the great support of not only the Board of Directors of the USDLDF, but also many wonderful individuals from around our beautiful nation to help make this event a reality.

All of our competitors and their teams have dedicated countless hours, and have engaged in intense training to prepare for this competition. On display will be the high levels of skill and athleticism, and an evolution of thousands of years of traditional Asian culture to showcase lion dance in this modern form. This weekend shall serve as the culmination of their efforts, which I am certain you no doubt will find awe inspiring.

Spectators this time will be in for a special treat, as we not only have the Traditional category, but have expanded to include both Female and Youth categories as well. This increase in categories showcases the broad appeal of lion dance to people of all backgrounds.

I would like to extend my deepest appreciation to all USDLDF members, sponsors, judges, and volunteers for your outstanding support and contribution. Your donations and support have ensured that our event will be successful at promoting lion dance in the now, and inspiring the next generation of lion dancers.

Finally, this event would not have been possible without the support of my wife Beibei, who not only has supported this event by serving as the Chief Art Director for this event, but has supported me in pursuing my passions. Without her, this event would not have been possible.

I wish the best to all of the competitors here today, who have put in so much hard work to be here these two days. It is my hope that everyone attending uses this opportunity not only to see these amazing performances, but also to take the time to learn and cultivate lifelong friendships with lion dancers from across our great nation.

Official Greetings
Celebrating the 3rd United States
Dragon & Lion Dance Federation Championship
- 23 June 2023 -

Dear Friends,

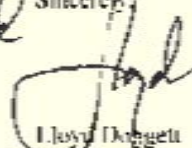

Though I cannot be in your presence today, I join you in spirit to commend the hard work of those who've brought us together for this occasion, recognizing their dedication to the success of so many young talents from Texas and across the country.

This year's Dragon and Dance Federation Championship continues a legacy of unity which began in 2016 when Nelson Ferreira and Phong Vo met with leadership of the International Dragon & Lion Dance Federation around the formation of an American competition circuit to join the international community. Thereafter, in 2018, the first National Dragon & Lion Dance Federation Championship took shape in Boston, Massachusetts, elevating masters, coaches, and practitioners from around the country to a national stage where they could both compete and build solidarity around a shared commitment to preserving Asian American traditions.

This year, I regret being unable to witness the performances of those who have trained hard, and competed harder, over the last several months to achieve excellence in their sport. Though one team will prevail as the victor, we can all count ourselves fortunate for the gift of such artistry. Gratitude must be expressed, too, for the leadership of the Championship Director Taran Champagne, whose longtime work to raise awareness of Chinese culture and heritage has culminated in this year's competition.

Events such as this remind us of the potential our democracy holds when we embrace our diversity, preserving our history as new traditions are founded which make our communities stronger. Congratulations on another successful championship and wishing success to all who compete.

success

Sincerely,

Lloyd Doggett

The Art of Lion Dance

By Nelson Ferreira

Understanding the art of lion dance is to understand traditional Chinese culture. Possibly no other Chinese tradition includes so many aspects of this culture, in some for or another. These dances include concepts from literature, folk art, science, and language as well as religion and philosophy. Traditional Chinese culture is full of symbolism and these dances are a great representation of these various concepts.

The dances are usually performed accompanied by live music from drums, gongs, and cymbals. Musicians most often play in synch with the animal's dance movements, expressing varied emotions and actions. The costumes used in these performances are custom made by artisans trained in the traditional manufacture of such specialized items. Although the basic structures may remain traditional in appearance, production techniques have evolved over time as artisans utilize innovative designs, modern materials, and technologies.

The colors and patterns that are used to decorate the lions are often borrowed from traditional Chinese opera face painting. These face paintings have profound meanings as well, as do the color of the bodies, bristles and/or the fur used on the costumes. Patterns and motifs are displayed throughout the heads and bodies, and many have auspicious meanings and positive messages.

The Lion Dance is performed by a pair of dancers, as opposed to the many found under a dragon. It is considered a harbinger of happiness, prosperity, good luck, and wealth. The dances are filled with symbolism and meaning, they can be very simple and direct, or complicated and mysterious.

During traditional performances it is common to see the lion do the act of “Choy Cheng” (採青 literally “Plucking Greens”), a quest by the lion to fetch the auspicious greens which in Chinese is called “Choy” (菜), which sounds like “Choy” (財) or “Fortune”. These greens are either hung high or just put on the ground or on a table. The lion will then approach the “greens” like a curious cat. As an agent of transformation, the lion will eat the greens (consuming what is simply “green”) and then spit it out (now transformed into “fortune”) to share with all present. The lion dance is believed to bring good luck and fortune to any area it is performed. This is also, many times, an objective seen in the competitive version of the art. Sometimes teams will substitute the “green” for a prop that represents a flower of a traditional jug of rice wine.

The lion dance can be performed at important occasions, including traditional, cultural and religious festivals, business openings, ground breakings, birthday celebrations, welcoming honored guests as well as engagement and wedding ceremonies.

Currently, the art of lion dancing has spread worldwide. It has been taught by the Chinese immigrants to the various regions where they have settled around the globe. This culturally significant art, and sport, is now enjoyed, appreciated and practiced by a variety of people of different ages, genders and ethnicities throughout the world.
